Third-Party Components

CloudCORO Inc. (CloudCORO) software offerings may include, integrate with, or rely upon third-party software components, services, libraries, frameworks, or products (“Third-Party Components”). These components may include commercial, open-source, or publicly available technologies that support or advance application functionality, performance, interoperability, or security.

CloudCORO uses Third-Party Components in a manner intended to align with applicable license terms, usage rights, and legal permissions provided by the respective owners or licensors.

Licensing and Attribution

Third-Party Components remain the intellectual property of their respective owners. Use of such components is governed by the applicable third-party license agreements, notices, or attribution requirements, which may differ from the terms governing CloudCORO software.

Where required, applicable third-party notices, license texts, or attributions are made available through documentation, accompanying materials, or upon request.

No Additional Rights Granted

Except as expressly stated in applicable third-party license terms, use of CloudCORO software does not convey ownership of, or additional rights to, any Third-Party Components. Rights to such components are limited to those granted by the respective licensors.

Support and Responsibility

Third-Party Components are generally provided “as-is” by their respective owners. Support, maintenance, or updates for Third-Party Components may be subject to separate terms and may not be directly controlled by CloudCORO, unless otherwise stated in a written agreement.

Changes and Updates

The specific Third-Party Components included in CloudCORO software offerings may change over time based on product evolution, security considerations, or operational needs. Updated notices may be provided as part of product updates or documentation revisions.

Trademarks

All third-party product names, trademarks, service marks, and logos are the property of their respective owners and are used for identification purposes only. Such use does not imply endorsement or affiliation unless expressly stated.
